Problem 10.3

Three useful features of classes and subclasses:

Using classes allows the programmer to "bag" many variables into a single object that can be used easily

Class constructors allow for the easy creation of objects, which could otherwise be tedious to define

The use of subclasses allows for code to be re-used in similar classes